Wilderness Connections

New Project: Fox Creek 2.0

Fall 2022

For the past 150 plus years, humans have made changes across the landscape. One of the changes has been in the channelization (straightening) of streams. Humans would take what was once a small stream meandering through a woodland or meadow, and reroute it to become simply a deep ditch.

Why channelize? Channelizing a stream allows rainwater and snow melt to drain off of a field more quickly, allowing farmers to till the soil earlier in the spring. But it also adds to an increase in soils being washed away downstream (erosion), and the loss of fertile lands.

Conservation is a key pillar in The Wilderness Center's mission. Over the past 60 years, we have obtained new properties and expanded our main site in Wilmot, including purchasing land that was once agricultural and included some of these channelized streams. One of these projects, which we've named Fox Creek 2.0, is a collaboration between TWC and the Nature Conservancy's (TNC) mitigation program. By restoring natural stream sinuosity, we will also be restoring the associated wetlands and riparian buffers that disappeared with channelization.

The final design for the project has been approved, and when completed, the project will have restored more than 1,000 feet of stream and nearly 14 acres of wetlands and riparian buffers. The new stream channel will meander across the historic floodplain with a series of riffles, runs and pools that provide important habitat for a number of species of fish and aquatic invertebrates. Features such as boulders, cobbles and gravel, rootwads, streambed log debris and undercut banks add to a rich diversity of habitat types.

Restored wetlands allow for the deposit of sediments during flooding events as well as important habitat for a number of bird and amphibian species. In these areas, native plant species that naturally occur in wetlands will be planted.

TWC is very excited about this project and the end results will add to the natural diversity of our land

When the natural stream sinuosity is restored, this will allow for decreased erosion and greater habitat quality

From the Director of Development

Maureen Kampman
Director of Development

Hello! I am the new Director of Development here at The Wilderness Center. I joined the team in May and have been busy ever since! Our goal on the Development Team is to allow TWC to continue fulfilling its mission to educate and engage our community on the importance of conservation for the betterment of us all. For over 60 years, TWC has focused on serving our community through environmental education and conserving important habitats and preserves. With the loyal and unwavering support from you – our donors, we have been successful with this goal! The dedicated support has been astonishing since day one and incredibly appreciated. Without our donors, we could not continue to fulfill our mission.

We had a very successful Annual Campaign. Thanks to you, we hit our dollar goal and received matching funds from the Dale and Loretta Hart Fund. Our Annual Campaign brought in well over $100,000! We have nobody to thank but you.

Construction is well underway at our Nature Playscape! Just another example of your donations being put into action to create important aspects of TWC. We are still taking donations to support the update and increase of accessibility of our Nature Playscape. Go to WildenressCenter.org/donate. Keep your eyes peeled for an exciting invitation to our grand opening!

A unique way to memorialize the loss of a loved one is through our Memorial Benches and Pavers. These items can be purchased and engraved with your choice of wording and placed somewhere throughout our trails or in a brick walkway. Call our offices to find out more information.

Keep an eye out on your email and our social media for additional information about our fun upcoming events. Our Annual Enchanted Forest tickets will go on sale soon and will be held on Oct 7th and 8th. Visitors will meet costumed volunteers such as Mouse, Spider, Tree Frog, and Possum as they are escorted along our pumpkin-lit trails. These friendly characters will sing, tell jokes, and share stories of life in the woodlands. The experience is a fun, safe event for families. The educational focus of the evening is on the interconnectedness and importance of nocturnal species. Join us!

All of these activities would not be possible without support from our community of members and donors. We greatly thank you for your generosity and support of our mission. Come and visit us soon!

Bottle Caps to Benches

We can't believe the amazing response to our Bottle Caps to Benches Program! Not only have we had a great local response, we even have people sending in caps from other states... as far away as Texas!

So far, we have sent 1,533lbs to Plastics R Unique in Wadsworth and turned those into 5 benches (as of printing, we still have at least that much to sort and weigh!)

We will continue to collect caps through September 23rd. If you're collecting as a group and have entered the contest, we'll announce the winner at Enchanted Forest on October 7th and 8th.

We anticipate we'll have enough to make at least 30 benches that we will place around our preserves. If you or your group would like to donate caps, email Joyce (TWB@WildernessCenter.org). If you would like to purchase and dedicate a bench, please email Maureen (Maureen@WildernessCenter.org).

News from Foxfield Preserve

To the Foxfield Preserve families and TWC community...after nearly ten years of dedicated service and visionary leadership, Sara Brink stepped down from her position as the Director of Foxfield Preserve in May of 2022. Sara has since accepted a new position as the Wayne Center of the Arts Executive Director. While Sara's departure saddens us and many others, we are so grateful for the legacy she has left us, and are thrilled for her as she continues to grow professionally and personally. We wish her all the best.

Change is never easy to confront - something our families at Foxfield Preserve may know best. While this news may be distressing or confusing, rest assured that Foxfield Preserve was well prepared for this change and is in good hands. Hannah Mann, Foxfield Preserve's Family Service Associate, has stepped into the leadership role for the Preserve, and we are very pleased to introduce her as the new Associate Director. Hannah brings a wealth of experience and education to this new role: she is a graduate of Hiram College, receiving her B.A. in Biomedical Humanities in 2020. In addition, she recently graduated from Northeast Ohio Medical University with a Master's degree in Medical Ethics. Hannah has had a lifelong interest in the intersections between health equity and the culture of death and dying, which informed her Master's thesis in palliative care education and service expansion. Prior to joining the Foxfield team in October of 2021, she worked for international advocacy organizations, youth health initiatives, and in the deathcare industry.

Change is inevitable, but with it comes so many opportunities to grow. Our promise to you, our Foxfield Preserve families, is to continue our philosophy of stewardship, sustainability, and education to create more meaningful encounters with nature and deathcare. We cannot thank you enough for your support over the years. Several new projects are underway that we are excited to share with you soon. The first of these projects is the Friends of Foxfield Preserve, a new volunteer opportunity for those who wish to connect with us more closely.

The Friends of Foxfield Preserve will be a special interest group dedicated to conservation, education, and compassionate care specific to the needs of our burial ground. Volunteers will have three different opportunities to help support the operations of Foxfield:

A Helping Hand - Hit the trails at Foxfield Preserve! Help us keep the cemetery space beautiful, maintained, and free of invasive species. Projects may include trail maintenance, planting of native plants and trees, and habitat improvement.

A Compassionate Guide - Learn more about the operations at Foxfield and help us help others. Assist visitors with locating a grave at Foxfield, provide information about our services, and act as administrative support when needed.

A Service Steward - If you feel drawn to assist in our burial services, there are sometimes opportunities to serve as a pallbearer or to direct service traffic. We also appreciate donations of fresh-cut flowers and pine boughs for burial preparations. Details on donating will be provided as the need arises through email or texted notifications.

For additional details or to volunteer, visit our website at foxfieldpreserve.org.

Thank you from the bottom of our hearts for believing in our mission. Your support means the world to us. To stay in touch about Foxfield, please join our newsletter at foxfieldpreserve.org or follow us on social media at Foxfield Preserve.

Tree of Life

When you lose someone dear or when you want to celebrate a birth, anniversary, accomplishment or other occasion, a gift to The Wilderness Center's Tree of Life program honors that moment in an impactful way. Each year, the proceeds from Tree of Life gifts support a significant conservation project at TWC, often planting trees to reforest old fields. Honor a loved one with a Tree of Life gift by visiting WildernessCenter.org/Give. Your thoughtfulness today will benefit future generations tomorrow.
